De Marque ships new version of its popular software to US retail markets

West Hartford CT, January 22nd 2002 — De Marque, developers of educational software and eLearning applications, and Enteractive Distribution today announced Typing Pal Junior Software for children is now available nationally in US retail locations.

After the resounding success of the preceding version of Typing Pal educational software, currently distributed in 12 countries with over 150,000 copies sold, Quebec-based software developer De Marque is ready to address the early development needs of American children.

"The earlier versions of Typing Pal were so popular with schools that we decided to produce a version just for young people, one adapted to their specific needs," explained the young co-president and CEO of De Marque, Marc Boutet. "We're especially proud of the fun new games and dictations that help children improve their spelling while learning to type."

De Marque's Typing Pal Junior US version, with its animated cartoons, appealing characters, and audio support is designed to help a new generation develop and polish their keyboarding skills. Typing Pal Junior is available nationally in the US through retail distributor Navarre and is available for consumer purchase in CompUSA and quality software resellers everywhere.
